Executive Summary

The 2024–2025 Raleigh Summer Youth Employment Program (RSYEP) was a season of growth, innovation, and meaningful impact. For 42 years, RSYEP has been a cornerstone of the City of Raleigh, empowering young people through hands-on work experiences and skill development. More than a summer job, the program offers youth the chance to uncover their strengths, expand their potential, and envision new possibilities for their future.

Participants gained valuable experience across City departments, community partners, and six new worksite placements, while developing essential professional and soft skills that will carry them into adulthood. They strengthened their confidence, embraced teamwork, and demonstrated—once again—that Raleigh’s youth are ready to lead.

The 2024–2025 program was further enriched through new partnerships with the Economic Awareness Council from Chicago and Accenture, alongside expanded program initiatives designed to provide innovative learning opportunities.

These collaborations, combined with the dedication of our career coaches, created safe and supportive spaces for youth to learn, reflect, and grow. Career coaches served as mentors and cheerleaders, guiding participants through challenges and celebrating their achievements.

We are equally grateful to our City staff, business and nonprofit partners, and families who entrusted us with their young people. Together, we fostered growth, celebrated accomplishments, and laid a strong foundation for future success.

As we reflect on this year, one thing is clear: RSYEP remains a vital bridge between education and career, possibility and achievement, and youth and the future of our city. We are grateful to every young person who showed up ready to learn and lead, and to every partner and supporter who believed in them.

Together, we are not just preparing young people for jobs—we are preparing them to change the world.

Summer Pathways in Motion

Each summer, RSYEP connects youth with meaningful work experiences that match their interests and career goals. Placements are designed to build transferable skills, introduce participants to professional environments, and provide exposure to industries across the Raleigh community and beyond. These opportunities not only help youth explore potential career paths, but also strengthen their confidence, networks, and readiness for the future.

When applying, participants select their top three career pathways to guide placement.

Options include:

- Business and Finance
- Child Development
- Entrepreneurship
- Healthcare (including Public Health and Mental Health)
- Law
- Marketing
- Recreation Programming
- Skilled Trades

Placements are offered in-person, hybrid, or virtual formats to ensure flexibility and accessibility. The following pages highlight the diverse worksites—both local and virtual—that partnered with RSYEP to make these experiences possible.

In-Person Worksites:

City of Raleigh Parks, Recreation, and Cultural Resources

(18 Community Centers & Parks Maintenance)

Raleigh Police Department

(Youth and Family Services Unit)

City of Raleigh Human Resources

Wanda's Little Hands

The Alice Aycock Poe Center

Raleigh Tennis Association

York Properties (Raleigh Union Station)

Garner Road Community Center

Participant Takeaways:

"I liked working with the kids and getting to know them where they are always looking for me and building that bond with them."

Hybrid Worksites

At The Collaborative, a statewide nonprofit dedicated to providing North Carolinians with access to quality financial education and asset-building tools, RSYEP youth gained hands-on experience as social media and technology specialists. Participants created engaging content across platforms like Instagram, Facebook, YouTube, and LinkedIn, developed posting schedules, designed graphics, and produced short-form videos. They also tracked engagement metrics, responded to audience interactions, and contributed to team meetings, gaining practical skills in digital marketing, content creation, and technology management while supporting The Collaborative's mission to advance financial literacy across the state.

Remote Worksites

RSYEP partnered with the mental health nonprofit Darkness Rising to engage youth in meaningful community work. Participants played an active role in planning and promoting mental health initiatives aimed at increasing awareness and providing support to underserved populations. They also conducted research on local mental health needs, offering valuable insights to guide Darkness Rising's programs and outreach efforts. Through these experiences, youth enhanced their abilities in research, communication, and event coordination while making a tangible impact on public health and mental wellness in marginalized communities.

Virtual Job Project Placement

RSYEP's Virtual Work-Based Learning pathway continues to prepare youth for future careers by providing flexible, real-world experience. This year marked the fifth year RSYEP offered a virtual component, allowing participants to gain valuable, resume-building skills while working remotely on projects that address community needs. Youth tackled innovative challenges by designing apps tailored to different career pathways, ultimately presenting their solutions to City of Raleigh staff, families, and community members.

Participants focused on one of the following challenges:

- Healthcare – Teen Wellness & Health Advocacy App: Design an app that helps Raleigh teens manage their physical, emotional, and social health while teaching self-advocacy and informed decision-making in school, at home, or at the doctor's office.
- Business and Finance: Build an app to support Raleigh youth in planning and saving for long-term financial goals.
- Sports & Entertainment Marketing (SE&M): Create a campaign for the WNBA that enhances brand visibility and engagement with Gen Z, emphasizing inclusivity and cultural relevance.
- Entrepreneurship: Develop an original app concept that strengthens or innovates a business of your choice.

The virtual model also included Industry Thursdays, where participants connected with professionals from diverse backgrounds within their career pathways, gaining insights and guidance directly from experienced mentors. By the end of the program, 91.5% of participants reported feeling more prepared for their careers, highlighting the pathway's effectiveness in bridging the gap between high school and professional life.
