Raleigh Water

Dear Residential Customer,

If you no longer wish to have your irrigation system in service and you do not have an irrigation meter, you must cap/plug the irrigation service line that branches off our your domestic water service. Homeowners may complete this work or they may hire a licensed professional qualified to work on residential water services. To ensure water quality, disconnection of an irrigation service line should be made at the point of connection to the domestic service line. Removal of the backflow assembly is not considered permanently disconnecting the irrigation system.

Upon completion of the disconnection of the irrigation system, please fax, email, or mail the completed Termination Form to the Cross Connection office. A Cross Connection staff member will visit your site to verify the work has been completed.

Please note that irrigation systems that are disconnected from domestic service lines cannot be reconnected. Future use of the irrigation system will require the installation and connection to a separate irrigation meter. All fees associated with the connection and installation of an irrigation meter will be the customer's expense. Please feel free to contact the Cross Connection Program with any questions you may have concerning this process.

TERMINATION OF SYSTEM

This form is to affirm that my irrigation system on the City of Raleigh's public water supply has been completely removed or capped/plugged. The City of Raleigh shall not be held liable for any cause, for failure to detect any facility or residence that has not properly disconnected irrigation lines from the public water supply nor shall this letter diminish the responsibility of any property owner from whose property a contamination of the public water supply may originate.
