

Renting with a Criminal History

The Fair Housing Act makes housing discrimination illegal

THE FAIR HOUSING ACT prohibits discrimination in the sale, rental, and financing of housing, and in other housing-related transactions based on:

RACE ● COLOR ● NATIONAL ORIGIN
RELIGION ● SEX ● DISABILITY
FAMILIAL STATUS

Housing providers may require individuals to undergo a criminal background check as part of the application process. A provider may use the results of the criminal background check to determine whether an individual qualifies for housing.

Recent federal fair housing guidance states that it may be illegal for housing providers to refuse to rent to someone because of their criminal background without considering the nature and severity of the crime(s), how old the record is, and any rehabilitative efforts since the conviction. This is because landlords who refuse to rent to anyone with a criminal record may be disproportionately limiting housing choices for people protected by the Fair Housing Act because of their race, national origin, disability, and/or sex.

Your criminal background is not necessarily indicative of whether or not you will be a good tenant.

If you have a criminal record and have been denied housing, you may have experienced illegal housing discrimination.

Examples:

- A leasing agent only requires certain applicants to undergo a criminal background check.
- A leasing agent tells you that they make decisions about applicants based on arrest records.
- You have a criminal record related to your disability, and request a reasonable accommodation to a criminal records screening but are denied.
- You are discouraged from submitting an application because of a conviction on your record.
- A housing provider's policy rejects all applicants with any criminal history.
- A property manager says you must move (or won't rent to you) because you've been arrested for domestic violence, even though you were the victim in the incident.

HOW TO USE YOUR FAIR HOUSING RIGHTS

- DOCUMENT every interaction you have with the housing provider. Include information about the property, addresses, dates, times, names of the people you spoke with, and nature of the interaction.
- SAVE any applications, brochures, emails, texts, and any other documents related to the interaction.
- If you are denied because of your criminal history, ASK FOR A COPY of the background check they conducted. You are legally entitled to it.
